John Davis Objects to Officials Proposed for South Connellsville.

John Davis of South Connellsville this morning gave The Daily Courier a statement relative to the naming of the proposed list of officials for South Connellsville when it is made a borough and which was published in The Courier Saturday. Mr. Davis is evidently not satisfied with the list and vaguely questions the manner of its selection.

The matter of having the list presented for appointment by the court was to have come up at Uniontown this morning, but no action was taken. More developments are promised by opponents of the ticket by tomorrow. Davis' statement follows:

"Relative to the ticket in connection with the officers proposed for the new borough of South Connellsville, the undersigned believes that a statement is due the citizens of South Connellsville.

"The incorporation committee met Thursday, July 27, and received reports, one of which was that it was deemed advisable for Council that a ticket be made for appointment by the Court August 1 that is to serve until election, should the Court so decide.

"After considerable argument by the committee, it was decided there was not sufficient time to call a public meeting, and after nomination by the members of the general committee, the meeting went into an election and a ticket was made up accordingly.

"There was (afterwards authority vested in a committee of three to replace any member of the ticket who refused to serve. When this authority was given, it was specifically stated that no person was to be replaced who would serve. The ticket, however, as proposed July 29 is entirely different from that which was elected. The consent of the nominees to stand on the action of the committee in exceeding the authority vested in them is unwarranted and questionable, and in the event of action by the court appointment would lead to considerable complications.

"Before making this statement, I have called upon four of the members of the general committee of 15, none of whom is satisfied with the action taken. Evidently there is a reason."

Exhibit of Philippine Relics Owned By Members of Fighting Tenth.

Dr. L. P. McCormick and the Tenth veterans will have a display of Philippine relics in the display windows of the Wright-Metzler Company on Thursday the day of the Tenth Regiment reunion. Dr. McCormick saw service in the Spanish American War and the Philippine insurrection as assistant surgeon of the Tenth regiment, and has many relics of interest which will be on display on Thursday.

Many other Philippine veterans and other persons in Connellsville have relics of interest from the Philippines, and they are requested to leave them at the Wright-Metzler Company's store not later than Wednesday night, so the display will be complete by Thursday morning.

Smith Writes More Letters

The Uniontown News-Standard received another letter from B. Frank Smith this morning. The letter was written from a point near Pittsburg, in it Smith tells how he returned six times at Uniontown in his game of hide and seek with the officers since his sensational escape from jail.

He states in the letter that he has no ill will or hatred toward anyone, not even those who were against him at his trial. He says no one need fear him as he only smiles when he thinks of them.

He states that some might think him a fool for writing letters. He explains that by doing so he is not throwing himself open to arrest as he does not remain long in one place. He said he might soon leave for the West and immediately intimate that he may return again to Uniontown in a few days.

Like the other letters received from Smith, this one is well written and carefully punctuated. The envelope is addressed exactly as was the other letters with the exception that this one bore Smith's name and return address on the upper left hand corner of the envelope.

This letter is a tame one in comparison with the one entitled "A Slide to Liberty," or with the other one in which he let out inside information.

Smith also wrote to Sheriff Johns and Jail Warden Barnhart on the same date and both officials received them this morning. They would not state what the contents of the letters deal with.

Camp Meeting at S. Connellsville

WILL GO TO SOISSON THEATRE

As Soon as They Arrive In Town Where They Will Register and Receive Their Dinner Tickets—Business Session in the Morning.

Plans for the annual reunion of the Tenth Regiment to be held on Thursday are rapidly rounding into shape and from all indications the reunion promises to be one of the largest and best held for some time. Dr. L. P. McCormick and J. C. Herwick, two active members of the committee, are doing everything possible toward making the reunion a big and enjoyable event. Over 200 replies have already been received from different companies and it is the intention of the committee in charge as well as the citizens of Connellsville to see that the members of the Fighting Tenth are royally treated during their stay in the city.

The Armory is being decorated today and when completed the building will present a very attractive appearance. Among the prominent members of the regiment to be present are Col. James E. Barnett of Washington, Pa., Major T. S. Crago, Congressman from this district, Senator Archie Powell of Pittsburg, and "Hop" Anderson of Washington, Pa., who wanted to be Senator. These men are popular with all members of the regiment and their attendance will be a pleasant feature of the reunion.

Upon their arrival in town the soldier boys will be met at the different trains by committees and will be escorted to the Soisson theatre, where they will register and tickets will be given out for dinner to be served about 1 o'clock at the Armory.

At 10 o'clock a short address of welcome will be delivered in the theatre to the regiment by Burgess J. L. Fortune Teller in Hotel Deal

Alleging that they bought hotel property in Newell on the advice of an unknown fortune teller with whom Chas. F. Goldstrohm, owner of the property, had conspired, Charles and Desiree Deimer have filed an action in equity at Uniontown asking that the purchase money be returned and a judgment be satisfied. Charles F. Goldstrohm, Christian B. Goldstrohm and William B. Rodgers are named as defendants. The mortgage was given to Rodgers. The sum of $500 was paid down and a mortgage given for $13,500. Charles F. Goldstrohm is charged with fraud and misrepresentation. It is alleged that he represented that he had seen "proper persons" and a license would be granted. No license was granted.

The plaintiffs state that they were born in Belgium and followed mining. They had little knowledge of English; being unlearned.

The statement filed states that Chas F. Goldstrohm approached the plaintiffs in October and November of 1910 at California and offered to sell the hotel property to them for $11,000. The plaintiffs allege that Goldstrohm told them a liquor license was assured, the hotel not being licensed at the time. He later told them he had seen the "proper persons" in Fayette county, naming John R. Byrne, W. H. Crow and P. A. Johns and had arranged through and with them for a license to be granted to Charles Deimer. It is alleged that Goldstrohm made no such arrangements, but made such representation falsely.

It is alleged that Goldstrohm conspired with a fortune teller who is unknown to the plaintiffs and took them to her in Uniontown a short time before November 14, 1910. After a time Charles Deimer was induced to have his fortune told. The fortune teller predicted success by saying:

"You are going to make barrels of money from the sale of beer. You are about to buy a hotel and you are sure of a license. Buy the property at once."

The plaintiffs followed the advice of the fortune teller. On November 14, 1910, the agreement was signed, under the terms of the agreement $500 was to be paid down. The amount was paid and a mortgage made payable to William B. Rodgers of Pittsburg. The plaintiffs later discovered that the hotel property was poor investment, no license was granted. They now want the court to order the defendants to satisfy the $13,500 judgment entered in Washington county and to return the $500 originally paid and $362.50 interest already paid.

Attorneys Robbins and Wyant of Greensburg and Attorney George B. Jeffries of Uniontown represent the plaintiffs.

Socialist Proposes Pensions for Aged

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Government pensions for the aged were provided in a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Victor L. Berger, the Wisconsin Socialist.

The measure proposes the grant to every person who presents proof that he or she is more than 60 years of age, has been a citizen of the United States for more than 15 years and if a husband, has not, without just cause failed in the maintenance of his wife, a weekly pension of from $1.00 to $4.00, depending upon their income.

Berger estimates that this measure would cost the government about $347,000,000 annually. The resolution is unique in that it contains a clause specially forbidding the United States Supreme Court from passing on its constitutionality.

A BREEDER OF TYPHOID FEVER IS LOCATED ON THE WEST SIDE.

Wagon Load of Decayed Hams and Stable in Unsanitary Condition on Lower Sixth Street Spreading Germs in That Vicinity,

Conditions are ripe for a spread of typhoid fever at the lower end of Sixth street, West Side. This part of town in the past has been marked for the number of typhoid cases it develops once the disease gets started there. Two cases have already been reported, only one of which was posted, however, by the health officer. This morning Miss Ivy Hagerman, of Ruffsdale, who was visiting at the home of Clayton Livingstone, No. 256 Sixth street, was taken to the Uniontown hospital, suffering with typhoid. Miss Hagerman is aged 13 and had been at the Livingstone home only a short while on a visit. Another case not far from the Livingstone home developed some time ago.

Residents of that part of town state that they have complained to the Health Officer about the sanitary condition in the immediate vicinity. They also say no action had been taken up to this morning. Secretary Alex C. Hood, of the Board of Health, was notified before noon today and he took immediate action. There is a stable near the Livingstone home that is in a bad sanitary state and it was said on reliable authority this morning that one night last week some one dumped a wagon load of decayed hams on the river bank close to the lower end of Sixth street.

The stable and the rotten hams combined tend to draw myriads of flies. The Board of Health promised at noon to have conditions on Sixth street fully investigated and every effort made to improve them, if they are found to be as the residents there complain.

A DIAMOND RING FOR PAT HARRIGAN.

Employes of the Baltimore & Ohio Remember Old Employe.

IN SERVICE FORTY-FOUR YEARS

And For Sixteen Years Prior to His Retirement Several Months Ago He Was Master Mechanic of the Connellsville Division.

P. J. Harrigan, a veteran retired employe of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, was agreeably surprised Saturday evening when about 25 B. & O. employes, who were under Mr. Harrigan, assembled at the Harrigan home on West Cedar avenue and as a token of esteem, presented Mr. Harrigan with a handsome diamond ring, a beautiful walrus satchel containing several fine shirts, a pair of gold cuff links, several pairs of silk hose, and other wearing apparel.

In behalf of the men present, John Irwin presented Mr. Harrigan with the ring, making a very neat address, while T. B. Miller presented the satchel. His address was short and fitting. In behalf of the employes present W. E. Mohler, in a very neat address, presented Mrs. Harrigan with two very handsome cut glass bowls. Both Mr. and Mrs. Harrigan were delighted with their handsome gifts and greatly appreciated the generosity of the men which shows that both are highly esteemed by the gathering present.

While Mrs. Harrigan knew of the affair, it was a complete surprise to Mr. Harrigan. Mr. Harrigan was in the employ of the B. & O. company for 44 years and for about 16 years was master mechanic of the Connellsville division. He was one of the most efficient employes of the company and by his excellent service was rapidly promoted by the company. His promotions were all deserving and it was with the deepest regret that his men learned of his retirement and to show that they had not forgotten Mr. Harrigan the men assembled at the Harrigan residence Saturday night. Mr. Harrigan was popular with all the railroad men, making friends with all whom he came in contact.

The evening was delightfully spent in relating B. & O. reminiscences which were of great interest to all present. A dainty luncheon was served and the evening was only too short for the railroad men. John Harrigan of Parkersburg, W. Va., a brother of Mr. Harrigan, was an out of town guest.

CAPT. E. DUNN PRESENTS TABLET

In Memory of Company K of the 16th Pennsylvania Cavalry.

A TRIBUTE TO COMRADES

Is Placed in the Court House of Washington County—It Contains the Roster of the Entire Command—Most Fitting Memorial.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 31.—Captain Edmund Dunn, of Connellsville, and a former resident of Washington county, as a tribute of affection to his faithful and gallant comrades who enlisted in Company K, Sixteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry has presented a fine bronze tablet to Washington county.

On Friday Captain Dunn was in Washington superintending the placing of the tablet in the court house.

The tablet was placed in the corridor just to the left of the entrance near the private office of the county recorder by J. H. Kurtz, of the Kurtz Monument Company. The tablet is of the very finest bronze and about six feet in length and about five feet wide. It contains the names of all of the members of the company and the rank of each and a record of each showing the promotion of each man after he entered until the close of the war.

This is the first historical tablet of the kind in America and the veterans of Washington county appreciate very much the gift of Captain Dunn.

On Friday while in Washington Captain Dunn stated that he was asked some time ago to write a history of his regiment and started on his own company first. He found that the records at Washington City were very incomplete according to a record he had kept himself and after spending much time in gathering data he wondered how it could be presented, so he conceived the idea of placing the records on a bronze tablet which is a beautiful piece of work and presenting it to Washington county. He also has another idea in view, that of instilling patriotism into others who may see their way clear to preparing similar tablets.

Captain Dunn was born in Clarksville, Greene county, but when one

Squire Bixler and Pepper Francis Turn First Dirt on New Fire House.

Before a small but very select delegation of city officials, the Connellsville Construction Company this morning started work on the new fire station on Arch street. The delegation aforesaid consisted of that veteran and valiant officer, "Pepper" Francis and the youthful city clerk, Squire Bixler. And thereby hangs a tale.

Early pedestrians were somewhat surprised this morning to see the efficient city clerk making his way toward the police station about 6.15. Not that the Squire was ever known to report late, but 6.15 is a little earlier than usual. However, the mystery was explained when promptly at 6.30 the Connellsville Construction Company's force appeared on the scene, and the Squire meandered over toward them. Officer Francis also meandered the same way.

There had been a desire in the hearts of two men, names not given, to have the honor of taking out the first shovel full of earth for the new building. The time had arrived, the men were on the ground but the question was, who should do it. Squire had the shovel, but he refused to take an unfair advantage of his rival. Time was flying, and after a consultation, the men decided there was honor enough in it for both and concluded to go "halvers." Accordingly both took hold of the shovel; it was given a powerful push, followed by a mighty heave and the deed was done.

The two heros contemplated their work for a moment, mopped their brows, shook hands and slowly wended their way to the Burgess' office.

An Aged Woman Cruelly Murdered

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Finger prints on her throat, the bloody impression of a hand on the bed spread, with an old, broken-bladed knife also covered with blood were the clues aiding the police today in solving the murder of Mrs. Rose Spino, 72 years old.

Her body, with the throat cut from ear to ear was found in the apartments of her daughter, Mrs. Pauline Nolan in upper Second avenue today. The police believe the murderer entered the room by climbing the fire escape and after choking the aged woman, cut her throat. They are searching for her son-in-law who has been separated from his wife for some time.

The Coroner thinks the woman committed suicide, but the detectives say she was too weak to have done so, and insist that the bloody hand on the bed clothes was that of a man.

Mrs. Geidel Will Stand by Son

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Mother love proved supreme in the case of Mrs. Agnes Geidel, mother of the self-confessed slayer of aged William H. Jackson in the fashionable Hotel Iroquois last Thursday night.

Despite the fact that she had spent her life savings keeping him from the consequences of his escapades, she came here from her home near Hartford, Conn., today to stand by the boy during his trial on the indictment charging him with first-degree murder, for which there is only one penalty, death.

Mrs. Geidel borrowed enough money from her relatives and neighbors to engage former Assistant District Attorney James A. Gray to defend her 17 year old son. Geidel was taken from his cell in the Tombs, dressed in the gaudy checked suit, flaming red necktie and glistening patent leather shoes which he admits he purchased with the proceeds of his crime. No plea was entered and the case went over until tomorrow.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 31.—Governor Tener has fixed September 28 as the date for the execution of George L. Marion, a Chicago theatrical man.

They met in the office of the chief of police in city hall, and when the woman refused Marion's overtures, claiming she had recently been married to a man named Brooks, Marion fired two shots into her body, killing her instantly.

United Press Telegram.

HENDERSON, Ky., July 31.—The steamer Kanawha, bearing the Congressional delegation of the Rivers and Harbors Committee on the Ohio river inspection trip, barely touched here.

Although an unlimited supply of mint julips was on hand to greet them, the Congressmen refused to leave the boat. Evansville, Ind., and Owensboro, Ky., were also passed by, owing to the delay yesterday caused by the Kanawha again grounding on a sand bar near Scuffletown, Ky., 12 miles above Evansville.

The trip it is expected will be completed today at Cairo, Ill.

Shoaf again took the measure of Oliphant-Wynn on the Smithfield diamond Saturday evening, 7 to 6. The game was a pretty one up to the seventh inning as ever played on this diamond, up to that stage of the game neither side had scored, when Leadbeater landed a slam over the second baseman's head for a two-bagger, which was stretched to a home run when Humphreys, Oliphant-Wynn's pitcher made a wild throw which let in another run. This seemed to get on the nerves of the Oliphant boys and it was all off but the shouting. Batteries Shoaf, A. Shananberger, Leadbeater, Oliphant-Wynn, Humphreys and Hoon, umpire, Billie Abraham, scorers, Byers and Showalter, attendance 500.

Both teams played clean ball. Billie Abraham handled the indicator to the entire satisfaction of both sides There was not a kick registered by either player or spectator against his decisions.

Mrs Howard's father, the late A. Core, was a justice of the Peace at that time and he was there soon after the outrage occurred and procured this piece of candle, the candlestick in which the candle is exhibited is an old heirloom of the Core family and is over 100 years old.

MONDAY EVENING, JULY 31, 1911.

THIRD CLASS CITY NOT IN SERIOUS DOUBT.

Will Connellsville have to wait until 1913 before taking on third class city government?

This is the question raised by Secretary Kurtz of the Chamber of Commerce, who has secured a copy of the Act of June 21, 1911, amending the Act of May 23, 1889, regulating the incorporation of third class cities. The third section of this act reads as follows:

The charters of said towns or boroughs shall continue in full force and operation, and all officers under the same shall hold their respective offices until the first Monday of April following the third Tuesday in February next succeeding the issuing of the letters patent to said city, at which time the officers of said city shall enter upon their respective terms of service, and the city government shall be duly organized under this act.

The amending Act of 1911 changes this section to read as follows:

The charters of said towns and boroughs shall continue in full force and operation, and all officers under the same shall hold their respective offices until the first Monday of December of the first odd numbered year next succeeding the issuing of the letters patent to said city, at which time the officers of said city chosen at the preceding municipal election shall be duly organized under this act.

The words printed in bold type indicate the amendment to the section, and the amendment, like a number of others, is made merely to fit the law to the Constitutional Amendments making local elections biennial instead of annual as heretofore.

The contention that the amendment means that Connellsville must remain under borough government until 1913, because the amending act says the borough officers shall hold office until the first Monday in December of the first odd numbered year next succeeding the issuing of the letters patent, is in our judgment a very strained and unnatural interpretation of the law and one at variance with the evident intention of the Legislature.

"The first odd numbered year next succeeding the issuance of the letters patent" does not necessarily mean the next odd numbered year after 1911. It more reasonably means the present year. If the language had been "the first odd numbered year next succeeding THE YEAR of the issuing of the letters patent," the contention that it meant 1913 would undoubtedly be correct.

All the amendments to the act indicate quite plainly that the intent and purpose of the Legislature was that the law should be effective this year, and that is, we repeat, the natural and reasonable construction of the language.

It is impossible to conceive that the State would enact a law putting off for more than two years the organization of a city government after the citizens of the town had declared in favor of such a government at the polls.

We feel confident in saying that Connellsville won't have to wait any longer on city government, and we would advise candidates to get their papers ready in due season. In the meantime, however, the Borough Solicitors and private counsel may be consulted by those who have any doubts about the matter.

A PEEVISH AND FRETFUL CHILD.

The Unofficial Organ continues in a fretful mood. It is consumed with doubt as to whether the law concerning personal registration in Connellsville this year is still applicable. It fears it may have been changed since 1889. The law has not been changed in this particular. Our examination did not stop at 1889; it continued right down to 1911. We trust our esteemed contemporary will calm itself. The Worry Family is large enough now.

We beg further to remind our esteemed but not well-informed contemporary that legislation affecting third class cities will not apply to Connellsville until it becomes a third class city, and that such legislation need only be considered with reference to that happy period.

The Unofficial Organ charges us with inconsistency because we printed in the news columns of The Courier certain deliverances concerning the matter of personal registration somewhat at variance with its editorial opinion subsequently delivered.

We plead guilty and throw ourselves on the mercy of the court. The matter printed in the news columns of the paper was given out to both newspapers by the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who should have been credited with any opinions expressed beyond the facts as found. To this extent The Courier is guilty. We will try to see that it does not happen again. It is not in conformity with the long established rule of this office.

We do not pretend to be authority on the law, nor have we "an extensive law library," but we have the Acts of Assembly in our library. Every well-regulated newspaper office should have them, but it looks as if they had been omitted from the Unofficial Organ's "extensive law library." It is certain that if they are contained in that aggregation of printed wisdom the editorial force is either too indolent to examine them or too ignorant to understand them.

In any event, we insist that our esteemed but uninformed contemporary is palpably ungrateful. After begging for help to its feeble understanding, it ungraciously and unworthily retorts by questioning and quibbling with the Kindly Light which illuminated its Dark Days.

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth is base ingratitude!"

Let 'er go.

The South Side seems to be a favorite haunt for burglars. Perhaps if the blue coats of the police force were visible there more frequently the South Side would have less trouble with midnight marauders.

The typhoid spot in Connellsville should be more rigidly examined into.

Texas now wants some Reciprocity with Mexico. The proposition is worthy of consideration and doubtless of negotiation.

The Glass Trust has submitted its plan for dissolution. It ought to be clear enough to see through at the first glance, but it is probable that the Attorney General will ponder over it.

Bargain Day tomorrow.

The deadly grade crossing is still slaughtering humanity.

A Smock baby found a match and was subsequently found in the Uniontown hospital where it died.

If The Courier is a near-Ismaelite, as the Unofficial Organ declares, it was the most popular near-Ismaelite in Fayette county last Friday.

The Unofficial Organ says the 16-page Greater Connellsville edition of The Courier was a Hand Bill. Nevertheless it had nearly 15,000 circulation. Not so bad for a Hand Bill.

The Courier may be an Ishmaelite, but it usually has the answer.

The Courier may be a Hand Bill, but when the Connellsville merchants want the largest publicity for the least money they use our columns and pay us the highest price paid for advertising in any Connellsville newspaper. Just what the influence of The Courier is in the community it is not for us to say, but it is certain that the Connellsville advertisers are satisfied with its business-pulling powers.

The Third Class City Celebration begins tomorrow. The Third Class City will not be too far behind it.

The esteemed Unofficial Organ seems to think we need some more dictionaries in this office. We don't need any here. If there are not enough words in the book for our purposes, we make a few. Somebody has to make the new words.

The directory season is on.

The announcement that a substitute for brass has been discovered, and that it is cheaper and more ductile than the original metal is interesting if true, but there is a suspicion that the discovery is not new or patentable. This particular article has been in evidence in the columns of the Unofficial Organ for some time past.

At least one Connellsville minister has followed the fashion of the theatres and requested the removal of the ladies hats during the services. We congratulate Reverend White upon his modern and sensible stand.

Another Connellsville teacher in the higher grades has resigned, this time to enter college. While it is possible that the law excuses him under the circumstances, it is nevertheless detrimental to the school service to have to hunt around at the eleventh hour for a substitute.

Our Undesirable Citizens sometimes come back.

Ancient Sodom is said to have been destroyed because of its wickedness. The modern Sodom is said to be the wickedest place in Connellsville. The B. & O. officials will not destroy it utterly, but they propose to eliminate its Undesirable Citizens.

Burgess Evans is a plain Republican citizen, but there are times when he recognizes the crime of lese majeste.

Italian romance begins at an early age, entirely too early according to our American standards.

The South Connellsville Incorporationists are getting ready to take on borough government. Better not be in too great a hurry. Sometimes "the less haste the more speed." To be safe, go slow.

All roads will lead to Connellsville this week, and the gates of the city will be wide open.

B. Frank Smith is reported to be visiting around among the Fayette county friends and neighbors and the Uniontown Standard suggests that some one of the school districts ought to employ him as truant officer. The suggestion is a good one. "It takes a truant to catch a truant."

These summer days only one topic looms up that has any interest to us.

SOLD 73 LOTS AT SCOTTDALE.

North Scottdale Was Well Advertised and Drew Businesslike Crowd.

YOUNG MAN PROVED GOOD

Clarence Morrow, Shows the Ability That Was Possessed in Such Large Degree by His Father—Methodist Official Board Meeting—Other Notes of News.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, July 31.—The auction sale of lots in North Scottdale, the new suburb, proved itself to be a big sale, on Saturday, from the time that it began at 10 o'clock, until it closed at nearly 4 o'clock. Seventy-five lots were widely advertised, page and half page ads of the sale being used in The Courier, and at the close of the sale those in charge said that they had disposed of the 73 lots for an approximate total of $9,000. Clarence Morrow, of Pittsburg, a son of the late Col. J. C. Morrow, was the auctioneer, and during the forenoon he was well on toward his father's record of selling a lot a minute, which the Colonel frequently reached, as Clarence sold 39 lots in 37 minutes. He proved himself to be an excellent auctioneer, under the disadvantage of coming back to the people that his boyhood had been spent among and following such a notable auctioneer as his father had been. H. Roy Morrow, the auctioneer's brother, prepared the plan and was on the ground during the sale and the two young men worked hard, showing a very good sale as the result of the day's work. There was a big crowd present and among those present were W. M. G. Brown, of Morgantown, W. Va., who deals in big real estate and who stayed all day to find what sort of a salesman Mr. Morrow is. He seemed well satisfied. Another present was W. M. Saunders, of Uniontown, a former resident of Smithton, who is in the auction business and who did good work on the ground. There were visitors and buyers from a large number of the surrounding towns, Jeannette being some of those from a distance. Connellsville had a good delegation present and the free lot fell to Mrs. E. E. Hover, of Connellsville, just at the close of the sale.

Many people who were at the plan for the first time were surprised at its beauty and desirable qualities, and this surprise and satisfaction resulted in good buying. The old Overholt house and the big barn with about six acres, about half of it underlaid with coal, was not put up for sale, not having been advertised.

At noon there was a lunch of cheese and ham sandwiches, raisin bread, cinnamon cake and hot coffee served to everyone on the grounds. This feature took well with the people as it was all handed out generously. The Grand Army Band of Scottdale was present and played during the day.

Going to Ohio.

Mrs. Buttermore, wife of D. J. Buttermore, manager of the opera house, and their two children left for Mansfield, O., today, where they will spend several weeks with relatives. Mr. Buttermore went with his family as far as Pittsburg, where he will engage some attractions for his theatre.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Hutchinson on Tuesday evening, with some important business to transact.

A Free Concert.

A treat will be given the people this evening at the United Evangelical church, Arthur avenue and Grove street. Prof. W. A. Cheesman, with his two sons and Miss Genevieve Stephens, will give a free musical concert, and all lovers of music are invited. This is the professor's first trip to Scottdale.

Fazenbaker Funeral.

The funeral services of Mrs. Emma J. Fazenbaker of Pennsville were conducted in the United Evangelical church, Saturday at 2 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Scese. Interment in the Pennsville Mennonite Cemetery.

Has Not Resigned.

An account of the resignation of Rev. H. B. Scese of the United Evangelical church, has appeared in the papers. He has not resigned, but however, does not expect to accept a charge from the conference this fall. He is anticipating entering the evangelistic field, but will serve his congregation regularly until the annual conference meets in South Fork in September.

Christy A. Wagner Has Many Relics From a Hunting Trip in the Far West

Christy A. Wagner, who recently returned to Dunbar from an exploring trip through the State of Oregon, has many curios which he picked up on his trip. Wagner and his brother, George, and an old trapper by the name of Watt left Coos Bay. They started southward and travelled a distance of 300 miles in a circle, returning to their starting point after a three months' journey.

Wagner brought home with him a trunk of curios, among them being many costly ones. The one most prized by the hunter is a rug made from the skin of a Rocky Mountain lion. The rug is a beautiful specimen of fur and the animal looks real lying on the floor, the head of the animal being mounted. Wagner also has several deer hide rugs and four deer skins prepared for burning. Wagner expects to have the skins prepared by a burned leather artist. The color of the hides when tanned is a light cream color and is as soft as velvet.

Wagner while on his trip killed two large black bears, a male and female, and he had the hides prepared into two beautiful rugs. Among the other beautiful curios are the tusks from the mountain lion and several of their claws which are very white and resemble ivory. He has also the claws and teeth of the black bears. In the curios are nine pairs of deer horns, full grown, and two pair of what are known as freak horns that grow about six inches long. The deers shed their horns every fall. He also has two pair of horns, known as the velvet horns, the horns of the deer being covered with a soft fur which gradually disappears as the horns grow older.

Wagner brought with him a large piece of myrtle wood and a small ornament made from the wood. The wood when finished and polished resembles the Circassian walnut. The piece which he brought with him will be made into a mallet for use at the Royal Arcanum meetings. The myrtle wood is only found in the State of Oregon.

He has also the skin of a ringtail cat. What is peculiar about this animal and how it derives its name is on account of its fur. The cat is much smaller than the common cat and is much longer, it being about the size of a ferret. The body of the ringtail cat is covered with a brown fur, while the tail of the animal is black and white fur, alternating black and white rings.

Wagner also fortunate to find nine gold nuggets on a government reservation and also found deposits of gold, copper and platinum. He brought several pieces with him and will have them assayed at the assayist's office at Washington, D. C., and if it is worth the time and trouble he will leave in October to stake off their claim. He has also fine selections of moonstones and the California goldstones which he has had polished and placed in brooches and belt pins.

Councilman Brant is reported to be resting easy this morning, notwithstanding the large number of friends who called on him yesterday, and everything looks favorable for his speedy recovery.

SOAP COUPONS BUY THE SILVERWARE FOR CHURCH.

Ladies of Trinity Lutheran Church Put Into Effect Unique Scheme to Get Knives, Forks and Spoons.

The energy of Trinity Lutheran congregation in erecting its fine new edifice on Fairview avenue has attracted considerable attention but the method by which the ladies secured their supply of silverware, necessary in holding the chicken and waffle suppers and other socials that have given them the reputation of being the best cooks in town, is the most unusual feat of all. The silverware was practically indispensable but the cost was somewhat appalling.

A happy scheme was struck. One of the members of the congregation had secured some silverware of excellent quality as a premium from a soap concern. She communicated her idea to other members with the result that soap wrappers of a particular brand were very much in demand. Orders for the soap were canvassed and after several weeks there was an almost unprecedented demand for the wrappers.

The result of the energy is that now the social room in the basement of the church is fitted out with a complete supply of knives, forks spoons and other articles that were needed. It did not cost the contribution a cent and the silverware that was selected will serve the purpose as well as an outfit costing hundreds of dollars. It will be used at the first supper to be held in the new church next month.

Firemen Kick on Big Engines

"They may be good for the company but they are bad for railroad men under present arrangements," remarked a B & O flagman last night in discussing the monster forty hundred locomotives which the B & O. is bringing into general use on the mountain divisions. The firemen complain that the great iron horses eat up nearly twice as much coal as the locomotive of ordinary size and require double work in bring them. The trainmen and conductors complain that the trains of eighty and one hundred cars hauled by the new type engines require much more work than the forty and fifty car trains of the recent past. All the railroad men see where crews lay idle oftener or are left out of work altogether by the fact that fewer men are required in moving all the freight on the road when one engine does the work of two. This latter complaint the men do not urge as a grievance because they will know that the right of any railroad to have its work done in the most economical manner cannot be seriously disputed unless it becomes a question of public safety. They do hold however, that where a new type of engine requires practically twice the firing there ought to be two firemen to do the work.

They hold also that more trainmen should be provided for trains of 10 cars than for trains of 50 cars. The firemen it is understood are pressing their grievance through the Brotherhood of Firemen. A few days ago a test was made on a train from Cumberland to Brunswick and return to determine just how much coal one of the big engines does consume. The train was in charge of a regular crew, with officials of the railroad company and the Brotherhood of Firemen aboard.

The exact count of shovels of coal thrown into the furnace was 1,112 on the eastbound trip and 925 returning to Cumberland. Averaging the weight of the shovel and the coal, besides the walking back and forward, with the space constantly increasing for each shovelful, the railroad men contend that the fireman was compelled to shovel over 11 tons of coal, besides he covered several miles in his walking back and forth.

This test was made on one of the easiest divisions of the B & O so far as the power required is concerned.

The railroad men believe that a test on either the Connellsville or Grafton divisions would show that a fireman is compelled to shovel at least fifteen tons of coal on a trip which they claim is an unreasonable task for one man. The whole question will probably be taken up officially at the headquarters of the company with the different Brotherhood organizations affected by it. The I & O, it is understood has recently ordered 100 more of the big Mallet locomotives and the men realize that in all probability the long train will be the rule in the future hence the intense anxiety for arrangements to run them without injuring the position of the railroad worker.

Makes Schedule for Cup Series

Already arrangements are being made for the Lynch Cup series that will be contested for by the six pennant winners of the Frick leagues. The series opens on August 7 and closes September 9. Each team will meet every other team once at home and once abroad.

The rather difficult task of outlining the schedule was turned over to George S. Connell, sporting editor of The Courier, who on Saturday night turned it over to the league officials it will be acted upon at a meeting this evening.

The schedule was particularly complicated because of the uncertainty regarding the pennant winners of at least two divisions and the fact that teams making long jumps could be booked only on lay-off days. Despite this fact a schedule was arranged that is believed will meet all of these requirements. Both Chairman C. B. Franks and Secretary L. F. Shutterly, who examined the schedule after it had been submitted, pronounced it the best that has yet been submitted since the Frick league was organized.

Spoke Highly of Band.

In the absence of Chief Musician Buttermore of the Tenth Regiment Band, he having been called home because of the death of his aged mother A. J. McColly of Latrobe, directed the band upon the occasion of the concerts rendered by it at Brigade headquarters at Camp John A. Wiley, and also on the Square at Indiana, Thursday evening.

All of the papers speak highly of this concert saying that it was enjoyed by hundreds of listeners.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

Coast removed his sou'wester and came forward a pace, so that the light was strong upon his face. "Yes, ma'am," he said, "I'm the new operator. "How d'you do?" He contrived to keep his tone coolly respectful and impersonal, but his eyes were pleading with her, and he hung upon the issue of her response as a condemned man lives in the hope of a reprieve.

She knew him now; his action in uncovering his features had but hastened slightly the confirmation of her most dread premonition. And of a sudden her face was a mask of chalk set with eyes that blazed with cold fires of terror. Coast saw her sway, but though he feared she was about to faint, dared not move to her assistance. Indeed, there was no need; she was fashioned of sterner stuff; though every atom of her being shuddered, she remained mistress of herself. An instant's delay would have been damning; she knew that . . . and her answer fell pat as he ceased to speak.

"Good evening," she said so admirably that there was even a hint of languid indifference in her voice. "You have surprised us, Mr. Handyside."

"Lord, yes!" Blackstock broke in. "It's hard to believe. D'you mean to tell me you made the run through this storm?"

The blood flowed back into Coast's heart. He flashed the woman a look of thanks, but her gaze was blank as it met his, and he knew that as yet she existed and guided her actions automatically. The real awakening to the situation was yet to come—nor with her would it be long delayed. The crisis was not yet past.

"Well," he said, with a careless half-laugh, "I'm here, you see. It is a blow, that's a fact. Had me frightened; I've seen some storms—but they were from the decks of steamships." He began to unfasten the oilskin coat. "Lucky to get here at all, I guess."

"That's true, or I'm no judge of weather. I wonder you managed to get Finn and Hecksher to take the chance."

"They didn't want to." Coast offered up a fervent prayer of gratitude for the fortuitous turn of the conversation that had supplied him with the names of Mr. Handyside's traveling companions. "But I was told to hustle because Power was leaving you practically without notice, so I insisted. Of course the fog held us up all morning; and then we had to have an accident!"

"How's that?" Blackstock sat down heavily, still with his staring eyes turned toward Coast, his face clouded with thoughtfulness. "Where are they, anyway?" he continued without pause, as one reminded of an oversight. "Finn—Hecksher—why aren't they with you?"

"Oh, they're all right," Coast parried, making time for Katherine, whose struggle to retain her poise and comprehend just what it all meant was engaging his attention to such a degree that he had to force himself to give heed to Blackstock. "You don't need to worry about them."

Blackstock leaned forward, scowling intently. "What d'you mean by that? Didn't they bring you here?"

"Only part way; you see, this accident I mentioned—"

"What sort of an accident? Hang it, if they didn't bring you— Where'd you leave them?"

"Safe enough—high and dry—aground in Quick's Hole."

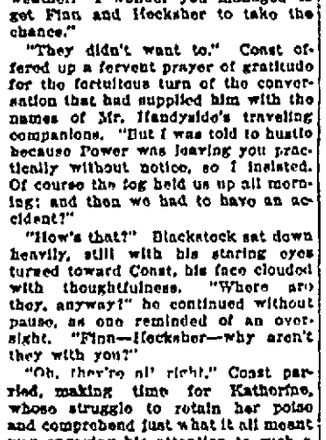

"The devil you say! How'd Finn come to run the Corsair aground? Why, he knows more about this coast—"

"Not his fault. It came about kindness of some amateur ass—beg pardon, Mr. Black; I'm quoting Mr. Finn—in a catboat. . . . They almost ran us down when we were about midway through the Hole—didn't seem to know what they were doing; and in trying to avoid a collision we piled up on a shoal on the lefthand side of the channel—forget the name of the island it makes off from."

Coast hesitated in assumed perplexity, in actual trepidation more acute than he cared to acknowledge even to himself.

"Pasque, you mean?"

"That's it." But though his story seemed to be credited, the tension held unrelaxed; Katherine was recovering from her shock and . . . What would she do when she had had time to take second thought? Would her primal impulse shield him, to further his deception, prevail? Or would some mad concept of duty force her to expose him and bring ruin down upon them both?

"Lucky to Get 'ere at All, I Guess."

He could not keep his eyes from her. Not a detail of her attitude escaped him, not a convulsive movement of her hand (in whose rosy hollow lay his life and hers) . . . She stood unmoving by the table, one hand touching it for support.

Meanwhile he heard himself talking, responding glibly to Blackstock's testy catechism.

"But how the devil'd you get here, then?"

"Pure luck. We'd been stuck about half an hour when a fisherman—fellow named Wise, from Vineyard Haven—came along, trying to beat the storm home. We hailed him and he lufted up to us—he could do that with his boat, a light-draught Cape Cod cat; and I offered him a ten-spot to bring me on. You see, I understood it was an emergency case. He held back a bit, but the sight of the money fetched him; and he earned it. I wouldn't take that trip again for a hundred dollars."

"Well, then . . . But what's become of him?"

"Oh, he went back to his boat—said he didn't dare to leave her for fear she'd drag and come up on the beach. Besides, he said his wife'd be fretting about him and he wanted to be ready to beat back the first sign of a let up."

"I see." Blackstock nodded slowly. "You must be pretty well used up." He laid his hand as if abstractedly upon the table beside him, moved it to and fro, found the edge of the whisky tray, and grasped the neck of the decanter. "You've earned a drink, Handyside?"

"Thank you," he said, "but I'm on the wagon."

Blackstock chuckled. "That's your affair," he said. I'm not." There was a grain of combative bravado in the latter words. He splashed whisky into a tumbler and diluted it with a little water, finding the objects with an adroitness on a par with that which had excited Appleyard's interest. "Health," he said, tersely, and drank.

The woman roused herself. "Perhaps Mr. Handyside will sit down," she suggested in a toneless voice.

Her eyes challenged Coast's. He looked away, unable to endure their pitiful defiance. The drama of her life had needed but this last heartrending touch. There are tragedies in women's life beside which death itself is trifling.

"No, thanks; I'm all wet." He wondered to hear his own voice so steady and in character with his impersonation. "About done up, too. If you don't mind, I'd like to turn in."

"I'll show you the way." Blackstock rose. "You're to have Power's room."

Coast's glance was instant to the woman's face and found it inscrutable. Did she or did she not suspect? . . .

"Power won't mind?" he asked quickly; and still she showed no sign.

"Power!" Blackstock laughed harshly. "No, he won't mind," he replied, ironic. "Power's gone already. We had a little falling out and he took one of my rowboats—the only rowboat—and left, without so much's by-your-leave; rowed across to the Vineyard, I guess. In the fog, too—the poor fool. Serve him right if he got carried out to sea and was never heard of again—the hound!"

And still Katherine's expression evinced no indication that she understood.

"You don't seem to like Power much," Coast suggested uneasily.

"No, I didn't like the dog," he said, measuring a drink with the same uncanny accuracy, his prominent and sightless eyes seeming to watch the liquor mount in the glass. "He was a surly devil with a devil's temper. One of my servants—Chinese are the only kind we keep in a place like this—tried to prevent him from taking the boat, and Power turned on him and nearly brained the poor fellow with a rock. We missed him and after a long search found him insensible down on the beach. He's been out of his head ever since—delirious. You may hear him during the night. Hope he won't keep you awake."

He sat down an empty glass.

"It takes a deal to keep me awake when my mind's set on sleep," Coast evaded. "I'm sorry about Power's misbehaving, though."

"Well, profit by his example, and don't mix in matters that don't concern you—here, at any rate," said Blackstock insolently. "Kate!"

"Coming." The woman reappeared. "I couldn't find your cane," she said, as she crossed to the man. A gleam of white, a slip of white paper between the fingers of her left hand caught Coast's attention. He sought her eyes and found them meaningful.

With a word of grudging acknowledgment Blackstock took his hat and stick. "Come along, Handyside. We won't need a light; light hasn't any meaning to the blind. You know my sight was gone, didn't you?"

"One would hardly suspect it." Coast took up his sou'wester and followed the man to the door. The rustle of the woman's gown told him that she was near behind him.

"Oh, I find my way about. I know this cheesebox of an island like the palm of my hand. It's no worse than navigating your own room in the dark."

"Allow me . . ." Coast turned the knob and opened the door; Blackstock bent his head to the roaring wind and shouldered out against its force.

A hand touched Coast's; the slip of paper passed into his palm. For a single instant he looked into the eyes of the woman he loved—looked and read their message of pleading and despair. Then with a sadly negative shake of his head he followed her husband out into the wind-whipped darkness, pulling the door to behind him.

Their shoulders touched as they trudged off. The unavoidable contact turned Coast sick with hatred and loathing. Yet he held himself strongly in hand, crumpling fiercely that tiny slip of paper in his palm with a strange sense of confidence, as it were a guerdon of eventual success.

She had not denounced him. He would save her, he would save her. . . .

TONA VITA

Is a Remedy That Restores Health and Brings Vigor.

There is no excuse for being all "run down." If you feel tired most of the time with a poor appetite and bad digestion, you are debilitated and nature needs some assistance in throwing off this condition.

"Tona Vita" the modern tonic, is a sure means of overcoming this trouble. Many thousands of half sick, listless, nervous men and women, who lacked vitality and energy, have actually been made over by this splendid medicine.

"Tona Vita" was only recently introduced in this country, yet the sale of it is now tremendous and still growing. It is certain no medicine could be so successful unless it was accomplishing remarkable results. "Tona Vita" is accomplishing remarkable results. It overcomes nervous debility in a few weeks time, and brings back the old energetic spirit that is lacking.

It brings restful sleep, good digestion, more vitality and drives away the listless, despondent feeling so quickly that it will positively astonish you. Don't drag around half sick any longer.

There is an agent in every city, who will return the purchase price to you if the tonic fails to completely build you up.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is the assistant remedy to be used with Tona Vita in cases of chronic constipation. This medicine contains the splendid medicinal virtues of rhubarb, the finest of all natural laxatives. Harsh drugs strain the intestines while rhubarb, equally effective, has a tonic effect on the entire bowel tract. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative is an ideal family medicine and should be used in preference to any other laxative for children. The taste is very pleasant.

Tona Vita and Lee's Rhubarb Laxative should be used inative are sold in Connellsville by A. A. Clarke.

SMILE WHEN YOU LOSE.

Then Brace Up and Start Right In to Become a Winner.

Be as good a loser as you are a winner—a hard task to set a man, but not an impossible one. Many have met it. Those who have are those who win more than they lose, for nothing inspires success or victory like calmness in defeat or coolness under stress. It is true in business, in politics, in sports, in any sphere of competitive endeavor.

Not only that, but nothing is quite as disconcerting to one's opponent in one of life's contests as the ability to lose with a smile and well directed effort to regain the lost. Any man who has run a foot race or boxed or wrestled or played ball knows that.

But nobody has any time for the man who is forever lamenting his own loss or defeat. The world simply credits him with being what it terms a "grouch," which means a poor loser, and passes him by for a more agreeable man. Any one can be a good winner, but it takes a man to be a good loser.

The philosophy of life itself teaches that in all of its precepts. Some one has to lose. It may as well be you, perhaps, so far as the good of the world goes, as your neighbor. It makes for unselfishness to keep that in mind.—Omaha Bee.

PUNCTUATION.

The Modern System Was Introduced by Aldus Manutius.

Punctuation by means of stops or points, so as to indicate the meaning of sentences and assist the reader to a proper enunciation, is ascribed originally to Aristophanes, an Alexandrian grammarian, who lived in the third century B. C. Whatever his system may have been, it was subsequently neglected and forgotten, but was reintroduced by Charlemagne, the various stops and symbols being designed by Warnefried and Alcuin.

The present system of punctuation was introduced in the latter part of the fifteenth century by Aldus Manutius, a Venetian printer, who was responsible for our period, colon, semicolon, comma, marks of interrogation and exclamation, parenthesis and dash, hyphen, apostrophe and quotation marks. These were subsequently copied by other printers until their use became universal.

Most ancient languages were innocent of any system of punctuation. We find in many early manuscripts that the letters are placed at equal distances apart, with no connecting link between, even in the matter of spacing, an arrangement which must have rendered reading at sight somewhat difficult.

The price of true success is patient toil. Never give up until you have tried every means to attain your end.

Pittsburg Girls Clubs at Rosedale Farm, Pennsville, for Summer Months.

The League of Girls Social and Educational Clubs of Pittsburg has arranged with Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lyons of Rosedale farm, Pennsville, to have a club vacation house there this year beginning the 15th of July and ending September 9th. Last Sunday a party of club agents, the girls who arrange for parties from each club, were entertained over Sunday and some remained through the week.

Six of the seven clubs were represented with a club leader, the president of the council and three additional members from the Opal Club. The party of seven consisted of Elizabeth Scott, Gilson Club; Jennie Seaman, Amethyst Club; Laura Griffin and Elizabeth Ifle, Opal Club; Josephine Henry, Concordia Club, Anna Linz, Rosemary Club; Ida M. Allerton, Secretary of Council; Ida N. Warnock, Opal Club; Esther Beuter, Methystha Club, Beulah Kennard, President of Council.

The Pittsburg clubs have all been formed during the past winter but they are already strong and flourishing. Next winter they expect to organize a Western Pennsylvania association which will join the National League of Women Workers. The League has thousands of members in the east, some of the older clubs being entirely self supporting and owing their own club houses. The motto of the league is "To Have and to Share." The clubs are non-sectarian and self-governing and give a fine opportunity for development as well as wholesome social life to a large number of self-supporting girls.

The Vacation House is one of the plans usually undertaken after an association is several years old but, Pittsburg has shown its usual enterprise in having one the first year. Miss Allerton, Miss Brittan, Miss Kennard and Miss Scott remained during the week and this week Miss Troutman and Miss Apel from the Concordia have joined the group. They have found plenty of fun in Pennsville from church socialables to fishing parties, not forgetting baseball and croquet. This week they expect to assist in the haying.

On Tuesday the party was increased one, Miss Aimee Weil, chairman of the committee from the Thurston-Glen Social League came to join the girls. From the present outlook of things this week bids fair to be an enjoyable as the past has been.
